DEATH OF Ex-GOVERNOR METCALFE.-The Hon. Thomas Metcalfe died at his home in Nicholas county on Saturday evening last, in the 76th year of his age. He had been indisposed for two or three weeks, but the immediate cause of his death is said to have been chol-

There are few men now living in the country, whose death would be more deeply and keenly regretted than that of Gov. Metcalfe. In the course of his long life, he filled many high offices, and discharged the duties of them all with distinguished fidelity and ability. He was one of the truest, and noblest, and bravest spirits that heaven ever created. Nothing could withstand the strength of his fiery will in the pursuit of what he believed to be right and just. Rising from an humble station by the force and energy of his character, and winning universal confidence by his generosity, his firmness, his manly courage, and his unfaltering devotion to the good of his country, he made himself a master spirit among his fellow men.

Although Gov. Metcalfe had passed the ordinary limits of the life of man, and although he had for years been a sufferer from ill-health, the power of his intellect, the fire of his soul, and the fervor of his eloquence knew no abatement. Two letters from his pen, addressed to us from his sick chamber and published within the last few weeks, are strong testimonials of the strength and the vehemence of all his intellectual powers to the last. Not more than three weeks before his death he visited several counties as a public speaker in behalf of the principles of the American party, and, notwithstanding his bodily debility, his voice, when he became excited in the great cause which lay at his heart, rang out in the same old bugle tones that in the long-gone years had so often rallied men to vic-

Kentuckians of all parties will mourn for the death of this extraordinary old man, and patriotism will love to kneel and weep at his grave. He has passed from among the illustrious living to take his place in the infinitely greater and more glorious band of the illustrious dead.

The Hon. Abbott Lawrence died at his residence in Boston on the 18th instant. He was born at Groton, Mass., in the year 1792. Mr. Lawrence was one of a class of men that are quite numerous in this country, a class known as self-made men. Mr. Lawrence left his native place when quite a young man, and arrived in Boston with a capital stock, consisting of a good character, an English education, a strong will, and two dollars in cash. With this outfit he began life, first in the employment of others, and afterwards he became a merchant on his own account, in which pursuit he was eminently successful. He finally quit his mercantile life, and invested his means largely in manufacturing, and was known as one of the "Cotton Lords," as the great cotton-mill contract. E., J., & Co., have a large force emoprietors of the North were wont to designated in the political parlance of the tariff and anti-tariff parties. His great wealth gave him a commanding position in his State and with the old Whig party, and he was twice elected to Congress from the city of Boston. Under President Taylor's administration he was appointed Minister to the Court of St. James, and this position he filled with dignity and ability, honorable to himself, and useful to his country. He was eminently a good and useful man; and in every position and relation in life in which he was placed, he was always true to his own high character, and just ing Mill Co. to others. The death of such a man is a loss to the nation.

"at home" when you called the other day. We of this city. proposed to keep you waiting only "fifteen minutes." Surely that was no time at all for a man to wait to accomplish such a terrible purpose as you seemed to contemplate. If the deed was worth doing, it certainly was worth waiting fifteen minutes to do. But possibly you had screwed your nerves up simply for five or ten minutes' service, and had no hope of their staying at the sticking-point fifteen. The rate at which you rode off showed that your business somewhere was urgent, for you passed everything in the shape of horse-flesh while you remained in sight. Did you keep up that gait feared had injured the cotton.

The editor of the Democrat charges that we contributed to bring about "the hydrophic scenes of bloody Monday." If the ex-schoolmaster will only tell us what sort of things "hydrophic scenes" are, we may be able to judge whether we have brought any about or not.

> [For the Louisville Bulletin.] LOVE'S CHANGES.

It was the twilight hour, the summer sun Had sunk to rest, his daily work was done; Eve's pallid brow was decked with one bright star, And, while soft music floated from afar, Beneath the shadow of an old oak-tree Two fair girls stood, with spirit lights and free.

One—an, far brighter than the twilight star, That shone above the wooded hill-top far, And lovelier than the holy sunsetskies Was the deep blue of her sweet violet eyes; Her raven tresses from her forehead flung, In wavy ringlets round her white neck hung, And beauty from each feature seemed to gleam Fair as the vision of a sculptor's dream. Yes, she was lovely, but a haughty air Told that the soul of pride was reigning there. It was a strange bright picture as she stood Musing in that dark forest's solitude.

"Lenora, speak! what are thy dreamings now, Girl of the scornful lip, and mocking brow? Florence, I dream of dark and earnest eyes, And a high brow where intellecte'er lies Like a bright god, and of a voice whose tone Tells of a love, wild, rapturous like my own. Such is the bright ideal of my dreams. And oh! how beautiful the future seems

Beware, Lenora, for a heart like thine Will waste its hoarded wealth at love's pure shrine The one thou lovest may be false as fair, For man's leve fades like music on the air, And woman's proud high heart must often feel A sharper arrow than the barbed steel;
A warm love slighted and a heart betrayed A warm love singuled and a near-toetrayed Are bitterer than aught else by falsehood mad Then love not, love not, for thy heart of pride Will pour its waters on life's desert wide,"

A year has passed, it is a fairer spot Than e'er was pictured by a poet's thought, Bright, glorious were the beings that now stood Beneath the gnarl'd oak of that ancient wood, And words of tenderness each spirit stirred, And love's low sighs and love's low vows were heard. Dark was the gleam of his keen falcon eye, Hers blue as the blue glory of the sky; Bright as the pair that first in Eden stood Were Ernest and Lenora in that wood.

"I love thee dearly" were the words he spoke Beneath the canopy of that old oak, Bowed was his proud head to those sweet young lips, Red as the flower from which the wild bee sips, Fondly her white arms round his neck were thrown, And fondly his became her living zone, Kneeling he calls her his forever A moment—he is gone, and all is o'er. She standeth dreamily, fixed is her goze, Though purpling now the twilight's deepening haze; Far, far away his horse's hoof resounds Her lone heart wildly echoos back the sounds. Ah! passionately she loves him, her whole soul Is bowed beneath his spirit's strong control.

A year has passed, the scene is different far From that we've gazed on neath the twilight star; Proud at the altar now we see him stand As one but born to rule and to command; Shrinking beside him, a young girl is led, A bridal veil sweeps from her drooping head; Say, is it young Lenora? speak! oh! speak! No, golden are the locks that shade her cheek. It is another, gold has had the power To win him from his bosom's cherished flower

Again it is a scene in that old wood Where, last, Lenora with her lover stood;
Wild is that wail of passionate despair
Wretched the young girl that is kneeling there; Bowed is her beaming forehead to the earth Hushed now forever her glad notes of mirth; Wildly she loves him still—alas! how well Those burning tears of agony can tell! In her despair her young brain seems to reel, For oh she feels and must forever feel. That warm love slighted and and a heart betrayed Are bitterer than aught else by falsehood made.

And Ernest, has he no heart-felt regret? Can he so soon his soul's first love forget? Whene'er he gazes in his bride's fair face, Doth not another steal into her place? Haunt not his soul those blue and starry eyes? No! gold has broken all love's holy ties! He bears not in his bosom one regret— For, ah, it is man's nature to forget!

LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD.—We are glad to learn that the work on this road is progressing finely. The track has been laid eight miles, and trains go out that distance to take out material and workmen.

The directory has retained the services of Edsall, Justin, & Co., sub-contractors of Seymour, Morton, & Co., who have given up their ployed on the work allotted to them, and they have concluded to have all the work for the fulfillment of their contract done in this city, and not elsewhere as has been the practice of the former contractors.

The following is the number of men employ ed by Edsall, Justin, & Co., on the road, viz: On bridges, - - - - 34 On buildings and depot grounds - - 52 On track - - - - -92

The Richmond Sun gives an account of the killing of Mr. Benjamin Glasscock, a well known citizen of Fort Bend county, by Mr. John Barnett, the tax collector of the county. The difficulty arose about the selling of some property by the coltector for taxes. Some angry words took place between the parties in the town, when Barnett left and proceeded to his house, a short distance from the business part of the town. Whilst there, Glasscock rode up and re-newed the former conversation in a boisterous manner, when Barnett discharged a double-barreled shot gun loaded with buck-shot at him.
Glasscock instantly fell from his horse dead.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river continues to fall. Last evening there were 5 feet 9 inches water in the canal and 4 feet on the falls.

We learn from the captain of the Bridge City, which reached port yesterday, that there had been heavy rains at Wheeling and points below, and that the big Kanawha and Scioto were rising.

The Cincinnati Gazette, of yesterday, has the following. We have heard nothing of it pre-

We learn from Capt. McMillen, of the Silver Wave, that when he passed Cairo a few days since, he learned the following particulars of a transaction which had occurred. It appears that a negro on the steamer Northerner had committed an outrage upon the person of a small girl. ted an outrage upon the person of a small girl, and when the Captain of the Northerner had put him ashore and administered to him thirty lashes, one of the passengers stepped up, and presenting a pistol to the negro's head discharg-ed the contents, killing him almost instantly.

The steamer Empire has gone to Paducah to go on the marine ways for repairs.

The steamer Fanny Bullitt passed Vicksburg on her her upward trip on Monday-all well.

She is expected to arrive on Saturday. We are glad to learn that our friend Captain Sheerer has concluded to stick to his former occupation as captain of the Empress.

The Sultana has been unavoidably detained, but will leave for New Orleans positively this evening. Mr. Kerby officiates in the office.

The new packet John Tompkins, Capt. White, with Mr. E. T. Woolfolk as clerk, leaves for the Tennessee river to-day.

In a paragraph yesterday, under the head of 'River and Steamboat Matters" appeared the following:

A new boat called the Home, built for White river, has just been completed in Cincinnati. The Gazette says that her boiler will not be inspected at Cincinnati, the local imspectors re-fusing to allow them the quantity of steam they desire to carry. The inspection will be made at Louisville. How is that? Are not the local imspectors of Louisville governed by the same law as those of Cincinnati?

The sentences-"Her boiler will not be inspected at Cincinnati, the local inspectors refusing to allow them the quantity of steam they desire to carry; the inspection will be made at Louisvillle"-were quoted from the Cincinnati Gazette. We gave it in the language of the Gazette to invite the attention of the inspectors of this district to it. The supervising inspector of this district is Capt. Shallcross and the local inspectors are Captains Swager and Dawson, three gentlemen of great practical experience in the structure of steamboats and in the navigation of the Western rivers, and whose integrity of character are widely known. We have no doubt that the paragraph appeared in the columns of the Gazette without the knowledge of its principal editor.

We are authorized by the inspectors of this district to say that no application has been made to them to inspect the boiler of the steamer Home; and, further, if such an application should hereafter be made, they will be governed by the same rules as the inspectors of Cincinnati, under the law of Congress, which went in force with the commencement of 1852.

Since writing the above we have received the Cincinnati Gazette of yesterday, which makes the following correction:

A misunderstanding in regard to the inspection of the steamer Home, as published yester-day, has led to an inquiry, and we find from the captain and inspectors, that application was not made for inspection, consequently there was no

The boilers will be inspected, and the test applied perhaps to-morrow, when the pressure of steam will be fixed accordingly.

ENGINEERS' Association .- At the recent ses sion of the Engineers' Association in Cincinnati, the following number of engineers and assistants, boats, &c., were reported:

	Engineers.	Boats.
Pittsburg,	179	69
Wheeling,	135	28
Cincinnati,	220	68
Louisville,	205	88
Nashville,	81	39
New Orleans,	310	91
Mobile,	99	30
Galveston,	19	10
St. Louis,	345	100
Total,	1593	523

The tonnage of the above boats is estimated at 162,000, an increase of 23,343 over the estimates of last year. It is also reported that there are, of freight, tow, and ferry boats, about

According to the above table (says the Cincinnati Gazette), allowing each boat to carry a first and second engineer, by multiplying the entire number of boats, 523, by 2, it will make the demand of engineers, whilst in active employ, to be 1,046; showing a surplus of engineers of 547 more than the demand. The Association claim nearly two-thirds of the entire number of engineers, or over four hundred of a majority of the whole. It is also stated that but two accidents have occurred during the organization of this Association (three years) where engineers belonging thereto have had charge.

UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT .- On Friday after-UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT.—On Friday afternoon last, Mr. Thomas Carver, of this place, in a difficulty with a negro man in his employ, struck him on the head, and injured him so badly that he died that night. Mr. Carver surrendered himself to the authorities; and a Court of Inquiry was convened; John Hall and Hamilton Frazer, Esqs., presiding. After an investigation of the facts, the court discharged Mr. Carver.

THE CASE OF CONSUL DILLON .- The Paris correspondent of the Tribune makes the following report on the Dillon affair:

Long ago Mr. Mason took the ground, in his communications with the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, that an apology was justly due the French Government in the person of its ofthe French Government in the person of its of-fended consul. M. Drouyn de l'Huys took the same ground, insisted upon it to the last, and would have insisted upon it to this day, if he had remained in office. The Cabinet of Washington took adverse grounds and instructed Mr. Mason to refuse to the French Government the apology which it demanded, which was a salute to Mr. Dillon's flag when it should be hoisted.

At this point the negotiation enjoyed a long sleep; but very recently Mr. Mason, in obedience to the instructions of his Government, brought the affair to the notice of Count Walew-ski, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, and urged its immediate settlement. The Count, ski, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, and urged its immediate settlement. The Count, perhaps, without referring back to the admissions contained in the earlier part of Mr. Mason's communication on the subject, agreed at once to a settlement upon a mere nominal basis, which is that instead of firing a salute when the flag is hoisted, the first French man-of-war which puts into the port of San Francisco is to b. received with a salute.

We wonder it never occurred to the correspondent, or to the editor of the Tribune, that it is the invariable custom to salute vessels of war from friendly nations when they enter our ports, and for them to return the salute.

TRAGICAL AFFAIR ARISING FROM CONJU-GAL INFIDELITY.—From an officer in Kentucky, who is now in our city, we learn the following particulars of a tragical occurrence which took place last Thursday night, in the vicinity of Florence, in that State. It appears that a few months since a man named Benjamin that a few months since a man named Benjamin Marcklett went as mate on the barque Mazzoni, bound for Liverpool, leaving behind him a wife and child. On his return, a few days since, he discovered that his wife had left New York in company with a man named Henry Weimel, who resided near Cincinnati, in Kentucky. Marcklett came to this city immediately, and in Covington ascertained that Weimel owned as Covington ascertained that Weimel owned small farm near Florence, Kentucky. On Thursday last he found out the location of their farm, and in the evening when all was quiet he sought their house. On the way he encoun tered a dog which he dispatched with a pistol shot. The noise of the explosion aroused Weinel who hastaned to the door. Marshlett find mel, who hastened to the door. Marcklett fired at him three times, when he fell as if dead. The faithless wife rushed from her bed, which was in the same room, and fled. Marcklett instantly seized the child and made off, and has not been seen or heard of since. Weimel, although badly, was not mortally wounded. The officers are in pursuit of Marcklett, and also with intent to recover back the child. He is supposed to be in or near this city.—Cin. Gazette.

Inspection of Liquors—Terrible Devel-opements.—It will be remembered that a late tate law created the office of liquor inspector. Dr. H. Cox has been appointed inspector of this county, but as his authority to inspect with-out the consent of owners is somewhat doubtful, he has confined his duties entirely to called inspections.
Since he has been in office he has inspected seventy six quantities of various liquors, in the city. He has found some pure liquor, but a great deal of low per centage, and some most city. He has found some pure liquor, but a great deal of low per centage, and some most pernicious fluids. In domestic brandy and port wine, he has found the following ingredients in large quantities, viz: Prussic acid, sulphuric acid, cider, alum, beet root juice (coloring), nitric acid, logwood, lead and copper!

He inspected one cask of liquor represented as domestic brandy, which was very strongly tinctured with sulphuric and nitric acids, so much so, that the drinking of a reasonable quantity of it would produce serious injury. There was not a particle of alcohol in it. In this case, but one man had partaken of the liquor in the cask, and he was immediately taken sick after

As limited as the inspection has been, it is sufficient to show that liquors are manufactured and sold in this city which are sheer poison, and it is a matter of regret that the law does not enforce a strict inspection of all liquors. It would be well for those who drink to "look well to little town."

The accounts from Portsmouth are of a truly The accounts from Portsmouth are of a truly melancholy nature. The deaths number some twelve per day, and the new cases yesterday were between twenty-five and thirty, notwithstanding at least four-fifths of the population have left the city.

A correspondent writes as follows:

Our town presents a gloomy and sombre aspect. There is not a magistrate or constable the council is without a querum and page.

here; the council is without a quorum, and near-ly all the town officers are gone. Two of the police officers are dead, and a third is now sick. The stores and banks are closed, the market is deserted, and private dwellings are tenantless, and all the hotels and boarding-houses are shut up. All our citizens (except those who remain from a sense of duty) who could raise means to get off have left. There were twelve deaths resterday, and from twenty to thirty new cases of fever.

The Angel of Death is hovering over us, and the few left are falling like leaves in autumn.

In Norfolk I learn the fever is raging to fearful extent. A daughter of Commande Samuel Barron has died since last reports.

VESTIGES OF THE ALBANY .- A Cambridge correspondent of the Boston Post furnishes that newspaper the following extract from a private letter, dated Beaufort, S. C. If authentic, it would seem to show that the missing sloop-ofwar Albany did not sink so suddenly as not to allow some one to make preparation for saving his life:-

"J——'s men picked up two very nice water casks at Bay Point; they were plugged so as to be water tight, and tied together; they also had nails driven in so singularly that we thought they must have had boards nailed on them, and J. tells me to-day that when securing them, in order to paint them, he discovered the letters 'U. S. ship Albany.'"

"P. S.—J. tells me that the letters on the cask are 'U. S. ship Bany.' The Al is not visible, and the B very indistinct." s men picked up two very nice water

[From the Journal de Geneve.] EARTHQUAKE IN SWITZERLAND.

SION, VALAIS, July 27. I send you some fresh details which I have just collected with respect to the catastrophe of just collected with respect to the catastrophe of St. Nicolas and Viege.

The 26th has been a yet more terrible day than the 25th; not that the shocks of earthquake have been stronger, but that all the houses, being cracked and ready to fall, were unable to resist any new shocks. At 10 o'clock I was at Grachen, sitting on a rock, and talking with two peasants, when, all at once, our seat was violently agitated, we were thrown to the earth, and at the same moment 13 barns fell in, the and at the same moment 13 barns fell in, the spire of the church was completely demolished, and an enormous rock, known in the district by the name of Kalchenzug, bounding from the top of the mountain, precipitated itself with a hor-rible crash into Viege, surrounded by a cloud of pebbly dust which rolled onward with the im-etuosity of an avalanche. From Grachen I went to St. Nicholas by the wooden bridge. Notwithstanding the reiter-ated warnings of the inhabitants, I determined to penetrate into the village in order that I might be able myself to judge of the extent of the dis-

All the houses had fallen one upon the other, and at the very moment that I quitted the village (quarter past one P. M.) a fresh shock occurred, which completely levelled the little inn called "La Croixe Federale." The only houses which now stand at St. Nicholas are the priest's house and the house of the notary, M. Binner. All the rest is one heap of ruins, and the wretched inhabitants of this village, collected together in a large field near the river, are encamped in the open air. It is heart-breaking to witness the despairing sadness of the men, who have just seen the destruction of the houses which sheltered them yesterday, and of the women surrounded by their children, who can do nothsurrounded by their children, who can do nothing but weep over this overwhelming calamity. Between a quarter past 1 o'clock and 5 I have felt six shocks of earthquake at St. Nicolas,—viz: at a quarter past 1, at 10 minutes past 2, at 14 minutes past 2, at 40 minutes past 3, and at 40 minutes past 4. At 5 o'clock I resumed the road to Viege by the right bank of the river, in order to avoid the storm of stones which never stopped falling. On the road the shocks continued, but I must admit that I did not care to note them very accurately, being in a hurry to arrive at Stalden.

being in a hurry to arrive at Stalden.
On the road I met the cure of St. Nicolas without a hat and in great pain. A stone had struck him on the head and another on the knee. He was creeping along with difficulty, but we were obliged to pursue our journey separately, for it was impossible to stop. The road was entirely covered with crevices, crumbled walls, enormous blocks of stone, and at every instant

I have at last arrived at Stalien. Nobody is in the village; everybody has fled. Almost all the stone houses have been shaken down. The vooden structures have resisted better.

At half past 6 I set out for Viege, but at 200 yards from Stalden the road was impassable. I was obliged to go, as best I could, by the side of

With respect to Viege you know what has taken place. Yesterday, at 10 o'clock in the evening, there was a fresh shock as strong as those which preceded it. As at Stalden and St. Nicholas, there are no inhabitants in this little town. They are encamped in the open air. At 3 o'clock in the morning I had fortunately returned to Sion from my perilous excur-

CONTRACT SYSTEM ON RAILROADS AND CA-NALS .- The practice of letting out work to be done by contract appears to prevail almost universally among men in the management of their individual concerns. If a man has a house to build, or one to repair, instead of hiring mechanics, laborers, &c., and having the work executed under his own supervision, he seeks some man skilled in such matters, who will agree, for a definite amount of money, to do the required work. Experience seems to have established this to be the most economical and facile way of having almost every species of work performed. Corporations, such as Railroad and Canal Companies, have very generally adopted this mode of having its works constructed, but they have not yet extended the system so as to make it embrace current annual expenditures for the repairs of the roads and canals and for transportation expenses on railroads. In the State of N. York, the annual expenditure for repairs to the canals is very heavy, and detract materially from the net profit of these works.

During the past winter Wm. J. McAlpine, Esq., late State Engineer, and other associates, made a proposition to the Senate, to keep the canals of the State in repair for $700,000 per annum, $432,000 less than the cost of repairs for the previous year. This general proposition was not accepted, but a partial trial of the system has been made on section No. 1 of the Erie Canal. This section-18 miles long-has now been under trial since the opening of the canal this season, under responsible contractors, and has been found to operate in the most satisfactory manner. The repairing for this section during each of the previous three years cost $100,000, and the contract was taken to keep it in repair for five years for $43,000 per annumsaving to the State $57,000 each year. This section has been kept in better condition, and boats have experienced less delay and trouble in passing the locks than during any former year. The following is an extract from a recent Report of the State Canal Board on the Contract System, and shows what its members

The continually increasing cost of the canal repairs admonishes us that this lavish expendi-ture must be arrested, and greater economy exercised in their management, or their revenues will be soon entirely swept away.

The results of the experiment of letting the repairs by contract are thus far of the most encouraging character, and afford strong grounds of hope and belief that it will ultimately be found to be the only system under which the canals of our State can be made productive of

The saving shown to result from having the canals repaired by contract is natural enough, and doubtless is mainly attributable to the superior vigilance of the supervisors in detecting leaks and imperfections in the work, and thus guarding against the breaches which often happen when the causes of failure are not carefully watched and promptly removed.

But it is in operating railroads that we particularly desire to see the contract system introduced. In the United States railroads are so long, and the number of persons who are on wages so great, that the principle of personal interest in diminishing the working expenses practically does not exist. The application of the principle of self-interest to the engineers, making them interested in saving the fuel and oil, and making them personally interested in reducing the amount of repairs per mile run, is, we are strongly convinced, the true and only way to reduce the locomotive expenses of our railways. The men realize that they are working for themselves as well as for the railway company, and every effort is made in behalf of economy and efficiency. The inducements to the exercise of carefulness and economy by the engineers of railways are very small under the present system, where the men are hired by the week or month. They, or at least too many of them, care but little for aught but their pay. This is human nature all the world over, and therefore we should not be surprised at it. But it is not an impossibility to make these same men interested in saving, and that by an appeal to their selfinterest. Show these men how they can make twenty or even five dollars per month more than they now do, and they straightway have a strong motive for following the right track.

Several of the large railway companies of Great Britain have given the contract system a pretty thorough trial, and the results, according to the English journals, are very satisfactory. We hope to see the railroad companies in this country follow the lead; it is a movement in the right direction-one calculated to fix responsibility on the proper persons and to promote economy in the management of the roads.

FRUIT IN CHICAGO MARKET. - The Chicago Tribune says that thirty-six barrels of apples, "June Reds." were received by one firm by railroad from southern Illinois, which are selling at $4 50 per barrel and by the quantity to retailers; that large quantities are daily arriving by the different railroads.

Peaches from Kentucky are selling at $4 $6 per basket of less than half a bushel.

The Tribune concludes by saying that Egypt is reaping a rich harvest this season in disposing of her early fruit in the Chicago market.

PROFITABLE FARMING .- Mr. C. Dewees, of Hunter's Bottom, in this State, has raised and sold from four acres of ground, a part of his crop, 403 barrels of potatoes for the handsome sum of $756.

Last year Mr. D. sold from an orchard of 11 acres upwards of $700 worth of peaches. The present season he has sold his entire crop of peaches to go to Indianapolis, Cleveland, and Chicago.

More Fine Stock for Kentucky .- Mr. R. A. Alexander, of Bourbon county, in this State, on ship-board returning from England, writes a very interesting letter to the editor of the Ohio Farmer, giving an account of his visit to the English herds and the Royal Agricultural Show. Mr. A. has been the largest importer of Short-Horns in America. He now adds to his former importations forty-eight head of cattle and twenty-two of sheep. The sheep are South Downs. The largest portion of the cattle are Short-Horns, but among the number are a few Alderneys and Ayrshires.

Kentucky will keep the lead in fine stock among the States of the Union.

NEWS ITEMS.

News from Kansas to the 7th inst. conains an account of the excitement created in Atchison by the whipping of an Abolitionist from Cincinnati, named Kelly. A public meeting had been called, at which resolutions were passed declaratory of an intention to rid the Territory of all Abolitionists. A committee was appointed to warn Kelly to leave the territory within an hour, but when the committee waited upon him he was not to be found, having gone to parts unknown during the previous night.

Heavy Verdict.-A verdict was rendered in the Fayette circuit court on Tuesday, in the case of the "Lexington and Danville Railroad Company vs Shoup & De Graff," late contractors on said road, for $27,250-the amount of the means of the company of which they came into possession, and for which they returned no equivalent.

A GRAND NATIONAL EXHIBITION OF STOCK. Horses, cattle, sheep, and swine, open to cometition to all the States of the Union and to the British Provinces, will be held by the United States Agricultural Society, in the city of Boston, October 23, 24, 25, and 26. $20,000 have been guaranteed by patriotic gentlemen of Boston and its vicinity to defray the expenses; the city of Boston has generously granted to the society for present use a fine public square of fifty acres; and $10,000 will be offered in premi-ms in the various departments.

The previous exhibitions of this society-Springfield, Mass., in 1853, and at Springfield. Ohio, in 1854-were eminently successful, and no efforts will be spared to render the present show, combining as it does the four great departments of farming stocks, superior to its predecessors. The premium list, with rules of the exhibition, will be forwarded to all who will address the President, or Secretary, at Boston, to that effect. It is earnestly hoped all breeders and owners of fine stock will feel it to be a duty, as it certainly is for their interest, to contribute to the show.

The list of entries, exhibitors and award of premiums, and all the proceedings of the exhibition, will be published in the journal of the Society for 1855. Annual members of the Society who desire to receive the Journal, should mber to renew their subscriptions

PLEDGE'S NEW ARTESIAN AUGER.—Mr. F.
L. Pledge, of Grand Junction, Hardeman county, Tenn., has just filed in the Patent Office, at Washington, a caveat for the invention of a machine for boring Artesian wells. If this machine, when tested, comes up to Mr. Pledge's expectations—and we see no reason why if the second statement of the property of the p expectations—and we see no reason why it may not—it will be of incalculable service to the South, and will be entitled to take rank among the benefactions which modern inventive art has the benefactions which modern inventive art has given to the world. The machine will bore upon the principle of division and outward compression, without bringing the earth, sand, or other matter, displaced by the auger, to the surface Strata of rock will be drilled in the ordinary and the curbing tube will accompany and way, and the curbing tube will accompany an keep pace with the auger. The invention wil way, and the curbing tube will accompany and keep pace with the auger. The invention will thus remedy the great and heretofore almost insuperable difficulty experienced in sinking Artesian wells below the liquid masses of mud often found between the different strata of rock. The capabilities of the machine will be fully tested at Grand Junction during the next month or two—Mr. Pledge being now engaged in making the necessary preparations. We trust it may succeed.—Memphis Inq.

The New York Tribune closes a long aricle on the death of Salamon Rothschild in particular, and the whole Rotschild family in general with these remarks:

The greediness of the family in business n ters, as well as the niggardly remuneration they give their employees, is beyond belief. Baron Lionel once on 'change, spent a whole hour to induce a Trieste corn exporter to consign them a cargo of grain. The commission would be perhaps $400, the shaving and pilfering $200, but it is not so much the legitimate commission which fascinates them as the little mysterious advantages resulting from concocting exchanges and manipulating rentage. What they playfully call "ganneffen."

Old Baron Anselm of Frankfort, who, like many other wealthy Jews, was in the habit of eating on Friday evening some richly-seasoned fish, generally a brown carp sweetened with sugar and voluptuously swimming in a luscious sauce, opening in consequence the Sabbath with an indigestion which was confounded with compunction, used often to complain on 'change that he had not made money enough to pay for his fish. The meanness of the Rothschilds to those with whom they transact business, as to those whom they employ, leads us to think that, though there may have been at the funeral of Baron Salamon much sable pomp and melan-choly splendor, there will be left few to strew

BRILLIANT DESCRIPTIVE WRITING .- Bayard Taylor, who accompanied the layers of the Newfoundland Submarine Telegraph, dropped a letter at Halifax for the New York Tribune, which contains the following brilliant passage:

As we steamed down the Bay, passed the glaring sand-hills of Coney Island, the light-houses on Sandy Hook, and entered the open Atlantic, there was no swell to disturb the cheerfulness of our landsmen and landmaidens. The sea was blue and tranquil, scarcely rippled by the breeze, and stretching away on the right to a far horizon. On the left ran the iron beaches of Long Island, not now loud and terrible with tremendous breakers, but gleaming as softly behind their feathery hem of surf as if they had never known a wreck. The hills of Neversink gradually faded behind us as we went eastward; the white houses or Rockaway came and receded; and still the ocean was smooth as an in-land lake, the sky fair as a dream of the tropics, and our goodly company sparkling with smiles of self-gratulation. Even the broken hulk of the Franklin, lying off Moriches, which we passed at sunset, did not excite the apprehension of the at sunset, did not excite the apprehension of the most timid. A cliff of crimson cloud, which overhung the descended sun, gradually fell and spread along the Long Island coast, heavy with electric heat, and for two or three hours we had a superb display of lightning pyrotechnics. Quivering sheets of golden flame, darting hither and thither, seemed playing at hide-and-seek behind the clouds; javelins of white brilliance were hurled from the loopholes of their frowning bastions; the rush, the assault, the retreat, the dance of triumph followed each other in rapid dance of triumph, followed each other in rapid succession, until the bank of clouds rose, rolled toward us, and broke into sheets of warm rain.

ROMANTIC.—The following thrilling extract is taken from an unpublished romance:

"Listen to me, Gaspardo; do! When first I met the lady Arabella in the brilliant saloon of the Count de Pompereno, I was struck with the spiritual luster of her dove-like eyes. In short, my friend, I loved her, although I knew nothing of her birth, fortune, or station. 'Twas one moonlight eve, in the garden of the old chateau, when I pressed her to become my own, my cherished bride. She shrank from me, saying:

"'You knowest not whom I am.'
"'I care not,' said I passionately.
"'Then I do!' cried she in a piercing tone.
I am your unknown washerwoman, and I'd thank you to pay me for the six pieces I washed for you last week.'
"Gaspardo, I left forever the sunny clime of Italy a broken-hearted man."

Mr. Neipce's process of obtaining positive photographs is to expose a sheet of calotype paper to the daylight for a few seconds, or until a visible discoloration or browning of its surface takes place. Then it is dipped in a solution of iodide of potassium, consisting of 500 grains to the pint of water. The visible discolgrains to the pint of water. The visible discol-oration is apparently removed by the immersion -though such is not really the case, for, if the paper were dipped into a solution of gallo-nirate of silver, it would speedily blacken over When the paper is removed from the iodide of potassium, it is washed in water and then dried with blotting-paper. It is then placed in the camera obscura, and after five or ten minutes it is removed therefrom and washed with gallonitrate of silver and warmed.

In the manufacture of needles, the hardening proce s is effected by heating them in batches in a furnace, and when red hot throwing them into a pan of cold water. After this, they are tem-pered by rolling them forwards and backwards on a hot metal plate. Then comes the polishing. On a very coarse cloth needles are spread to the number of forty or fifty thousand; emery dust is strewed over them, oil is sprinkled, soft soap is daubed upon the cloth, and the cloth is then rolled hard up and thrown into a wash pot to roll to and fro for some hours, when they are rinsed in hot water, rubbed in sawdust, and look as bright as can be.

To medical men the great advantage offered by the Retrospect is its embodying in a confined space all the cream of Medical periodicals, sparing them the labor of wading through many velumes filled with much thivial and uninteresting matter, which must be perused in order to reach what is really valuable, and supplying them with a key by the sid of which they may find precisely what they require in any of the scattered publications of the day. To families and private individuals it is scarcely less valuable than to the prefessional reader, since, although purely and in the highest degree scientific, its contents are ye presented in a style so simple and unaffected that they are comprehensible to any ordinary intellect. Chickering's Parlor Grand Pianos,

BRAINARD BROTHERS, Jacob's Block, 74 Fourth street, near Main.

The Parlor Grand is the very perfection of all Grand Pianos, and is particularly adapted to the wants of professors, amateurs, and others who may object to the great size of a Full Grand.

The unique and beautiful style of this instrument and its perfect fitness for the parler are commendations that will not apply to the ordinary Grand Plano. For, while it combines the tone, power, action, and appearance of a Full Grand, it has the delicate touch of Chickering; Square Planos, acknowledged by every one superior to any other, and, though of seven octave compass, is still smaller as size than the semi-Grand Plano of 6% octaves, as it occupies but little more space than a 7 octave Square Plano.

The peculiar and compact construction of the Parlor Grand, an invention of the late lamented Jonas Chickering, is a sure guarantee of its durability. And the complete success of this new and truly beautiful instrument fully sustains the reputation of its inventor and manufacturers.

We have already sold several of these instruments in this city, and, to meet the increased demand for them, have arranged for a constaint-supply.

LATEST NEWS.

BURGLARS ABOUT .- Between 10 and 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, an alarm was given by a clerk of Messrs. J. B. Wilder & Co., who sleeps in the store and had just come in, that their store had been entered. The clerk's trunk in his room, in the third or fourth story, was broken open, and his clothing and papers scattered about. On examination it appeared that the burglar had also been in several adjoining stores. In that of Robinson & Bro., he had broken open two trunks in the clerk's rooms in the fourth story, from one of which (belonging to Mr. Carson) he had taken $50 in gold. A side door in Robinson & Co.'s, leading to the store-room in the first story, was broken open, but nothing was missing, though the room contained many silks and other fancy goods of great value. But the thief was evidently after

The hatches in Messrs. Garvin, Bell & Co.'s, and Mr. Sanford Duncan's stores were broken, but from appearances no one had been in the houses. Messrs. Gordon & Co.'s store was entered and here another trunk of a clerk was broken open, but nothing was missed. We believe a desk was also broken open. The thief fors. next got into Montgomery, Davidge, & Co.'s, another silk and fancy house. He had tried his hands on Mr. Keat's desk, shoe dealer, over M., D., & Co.'s. A false key was left in it, and an attempt had been made to pry it open with a hatchet, which was found in a window in the third story, through which the thief entered the store.

The burglar, it is supposed, effected his entrance into the houses in the following manner: Two new houses are in course of erection below the row of stores entered, which are four stories high in front and three stories in the rear. The roofs of the back part of the stores are flat, and from them the front part is easy of access through windows.

The impression seems to be that the burglar had made himself previously acquainted with the location, watched the closing of the stores, (which is about half-past 6), then ascended the new building, and got on the back roofs. He was probably in several of the stores before night had fully set in and while the principals and clerks were at supper. He could distinctly hear from the upper stories when any one would enter, and would then beat a retreat. Those that came in early, however, were engaged in the store-room or sitting before the front door, and the thief had thus full sway in the upper stories until bed time, when the discovery was that Spain will supply 25,000 troops to be in the pay of the allies. Portugal, it is also said, will furnish 10,000 troops.

There was a republican mass meeting here last night. Addresses were made by S. P. Chase, L. D. Campbell, and Capt. Ford. Chase denied that his election to the Senate was by arrangement giving two Democratic members seats as State Representatives for their votes; denies being a Disunionist; and says no expresson, sentence, or letter ever came from him not loyal to the Unton; no sympathy with Garrison's party nor the Nullifiers of the South; thinks slave ry a question precipitated by the Kansas bill; paramount and imminent not to interfere with slavery in States where it exists, but op-posed to its extension into new territories; but it must not interfere with us. The great bond of republican union must rescue Kansas from the slave State invaders. Ohio pays a tenth of the national expenses. Retrenchment is needed and has always favored internal improvements; severe on the administration for favoring Southern interests in this particular. The meeting was orderly and enthusiastic. There were about three or four thousand persons present.

Mary Lyndon, or Revelations of a Life.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY.
In one duodecime volume, neatly bound in cloth. Price $1.

THE author of this interesting American novel is among the most intellectual of living writers. It lequired the genius of the author to have grasped, with such extraordinary force, the scenes and circumstances through which her story moves. No other writer could have thrown as strong an individual life into place and locality. Her passionate fearless nature, her wild warm heart, are transfused into the magic world she has created, with such an intense earnestness, when no one can enter without yielding to the irresistible fascination of her powers. The book is a thrilling transcript of undoubted experience. The character introduced into her work are flesh and blood reslities. These graphic life revelations have created a profound literary sensation not equaled by any other production since the appearance of the "Scarlet Letter" and "Jane Eyre." and are "more talked about than any other novel of our times.
